

James Andrea Retires from GMS Transportation after 37 years in the Industry

Jim started his career in the Airfreight industry in 1972 for Flying Tigers working on the ramp. He worked his way up in Flying Tigers as a traffic agent and then Operations supervisor. He left Flying Tigers after the merge with FedEx in 1987 and went to work for Air Cargo Corporation as a sales rep.

In 1991 Jim started his own trucking company named Ground Control. In 1996 Ground Control, Air Cargo, Sentry Express, and Mortell Motor Express merged and today are known as GMS Transportation Inc.

Jim was also an active member of the Air Cargo Club of New England, serving as Board member, Vice President, and Treasure over a 15 year period. During the early years with ACCNE Jim was instrumental in starting the very first ACCNE Golf outing which till this day is an annual event in the industry that has become a tradition.

Jim will enjoy his retirement with his lovely wife Kathy, spending more time with his family and their 6 grand children.

All of us here at GMS Transportation will miss Jim and we wish him the best in his retirement.
